

LIVING LEGACIES

1914-18

FROM PAST CONFLICT TO SHARED FUTURE

EXPLORING OUR FIRST WORLD WAR HERITAGE

A public event aimed at all those interested in opportunities for interpreting, recording and understanding local heritage of the First World War.

Come to find out how to get involved in research and community projects exploring legacies of the war in our towns and countryside, legacies still visible today, through:

Defence Heritage Project

coordinated by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA), described by Emma McBride of NIEA

First World War: Then and Now

funding opportunities from the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF), described by Stella Byrne of HLF

Living Legacies 1914-18: From Past Conflict to Shared Future

a centre for connecting academic and community researchers working on First World War heritage, described by Keith Lilley of Queen's University Belfast with informal talks on ongoing projects exploring First World War heritage in Ireland, including:

Heather Montgomery, speaking on archaeology and the First World War
Rebecca Milligan, speaking on mapping First World War aviation heritage

Followed by informal questions and discussion. Refreshments available. Event free of charge, open to all.

Venue: Brian Friel Theatre, 20 University Square, Belfast, BT7 1NN (<http://www.brianfrieltheatre.co.uk/>)

Time/date: 7 pm - 8.45 pm, Wednesday September 17th 2014

The Living Legacies 1914-18 Engagement Centre is a focal point for connecting academic and community researchers interested in how the First World War lives on in the twenty-first century world.
