

Free event

CREATING EXHIBITIONS AND HOSTING HERITAGE EVENTS: A STUDY DAY FOR COMMUNITY HERITAGE RESEARCHERS

Friday 14th June 2019, 1pm-5pm
Institute of Historical Research, London

Are you involved in a First World War community research project and considering how to share your findings with the wider community in an engaging and accessible way? Are you interested in creating an exhibition or perhaps hosting a community heritage event? Join us for a free workshop at the Institute of Historical Research in London where you can hear from both the community and academia on best practice in exhibition curation and fresh and exciting ideas for engaging the wider public in what your research has revealed.

Speakers include: Dr Helen Brooks (University of Kent), Jenny Flood (Newhaven Town Council), Clare Millett and Mary Kemp (Westgate Community Trust), Janys Thornton and Chris Reed (Sheppey Promenade) and Jasper Bouverie (Funder Films).

This event is organised by Gateways to the First World War and aimed at members of community project groups who have been awarded funding from the Heritage Lottery Fund's First World War: Then and Now grant but we welcome anyone with an interest in community heritage research.

Book your free place here.

Supported by:

University of
Kent

